THE NEWS.

"I give my hand to all my race,
My altar, Freedom's sod,
I say my say, and bend my knee
Alone, alone to God."

THURSDAY, - - JANUARY, 25.

KEEP IT BEFORE THE PEOPLE, that the best way to prosper in business is to be industrious, persevering and punctual, and in possession of good sense enough to advertise in some widely circulated journal.

KEEP IT ALSO BEFORE THE PEOPLE, that the Cynthiana weekly News has a large circulation, which makes it just the paper to advertise in.

G. S. H. PARVIN is our Advertising Agent for the city of Cincinnati, and is authorized to contract for advertisements according to rates.

To All Correspondents.
It is useless for any one to send communications to the Cynthiana News, without his or her true name. It is our law to publish no original production without knowing the name of the one who claims to be its author or law, in respect, I. The unto those of the Meeds and Persians.

We are under obligations to W. C. LYLE, formerly editor of the "Western Citizen," for one volume of the "Guardian of Liberty," published in Cynthiana, in the year 1817, by John G. Keenon & Co.

FIRE.—On the morning of the 19th instant, the residence of S. F. January, Esq., situated on the hill, was discovered to be on fire. It originated in the roof near the chimney, and the safety of the house was considered hopeless; but, by the persevering energies of our citizens who worked as men never worked before, the flames were smothered and the fire put out. Too much cannot be said in behalf of the noble exertions of nearly all who were present at this fire. Old firemen could have learned a lesson had they been present. The damage is estimated at $200.

SUBSCRIPTION AMONG THE SLAVES FOR THE NORTHERN POOR.—A dispatch from Mobile, dated January 16, says: "There is in process of organization here a general subscription among the black population—the slaves—in aid of the suffering poor of New York and the eastern cities. This is a fact, and you will soon find it out."

UNITED STATES STOCK.—The Secretary of the Treasury has given notice, by advertisement, that the Department is prepared to purchase, between this time and the first of March next, certain portions of United States stock, amounting in the aggregate, to $1,000,000.

Gov. Manning, of South Carolina, in his late message to the Legislature, recommends a repeal of the usury laws. Money, he says, like everything else should have a relative, not a fixed value.

The sea, as well as air, is a free and common thing to all; and a particular nation cannot pretend to have the right to the exclusion of all others, without violating the rights of nature and public usage.—QUEEN BESS.

The following advertisement from the "Guardian of Liberty," will be interesting to a number of our readers in Leesburg:

"TAKE NOTICE.—That I will apply to the Court to be held for the county of Harrison, at their May court, for an order to establish a TOWN, called and known by the name of LEESBURG, agreeable to a plat of this town already laid down, in conformity with the law made and provided in that case.

Feb. 12, 1817. WILL. E. BOSWELL.

At an election held at the Temperance Hall, Oddville, Dec. 27, 1854, the following officers were elected for the first quarter of the present year:

S. A. Whitaker, W. P.; Wm. P. W. Whitaker, W. A.; John D. Batson, R. S.; Jas. M. White, A. R. S.; H. Mc. Whitaker, F. S.; Thomas K. Roarer, T.; Josiah T. Crow, C.; John P. Brannock, A. C.; Lewis N. Mullen, I. S.; James M. Sipple, O. S.; D. W. Axline, Chaplain.

A SOULLESS LADY.—A young lady being asked by a Minister how her soul prospered, replied that she had no soul. For, said she, my father was a Wolf and my mother was a Bear, and, as wolves and bears possess no souls, I am, of course, soulless. The Minister "immediately phantomed."

It is stated that Mr. Mason, the United States Minister to France, has been struck with paralysis, and at last accounts was lying very ill.

Now see here; we wish to impart an item of intelligence to our friends—the news that friend Hoffman has again embarked in business—the tailoring business. Industry should be encouraged; and as this gentleman has determined to make GENTLEMEN, (as far as a tailor can) we think it would only be doing justice to a citizen in permitting, when an opportunity offers, friend Hoffman to make the outside apparel for a gentleman. His shop is on Pike street.

Politeness is a social passport all over the world, and good society is the best school in which it is to be learned. Neither talent, wit, nor genius, can conceal the positive deformity of impoliteness.

Melancholy Accident.

On Sunday last, about half-past 10 o'clock, a most melancholy accident occurred on the railroad, near this place, which resulted in the death of Charles H. Anderson, the Postmaster at this place, and one of our most worthy and estimable citizens.

It appears that Mr. Anderson and several other gentlemen, wishing to make a short excursion down the railroad, got into a hand-car for that purpose, and, while he was engaged in turning the crank by which the car was propelled, the handle by some means became entangled in the skirt of his coat, and throwing him violently forward on the track, the wheels of the car passed over his neck and his head, mangle him terribly and producing instant death. One or two others on the car were thrown off by the shock, and upon repairing immediately to the assistance of Mr. Anderson they found life extinct. His body was brought to town soon after, and a Coroner's inquest held, which returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts.

This sad and shocking occurrence has cast a gloom over our community that will not soon pass away, and the void thus so suddenly made in the circle of friends and acquaintances in which he was accustomed to move, will not soon again be filled. Mr. A. was an energetic, thrifty, and honorable business man, enjoying the confidence and esteem of the community in which he lived. His wife, but a short time ago, went before him to the grave, and by his sudden death three orphan children, one of them an infant, have been left with no one to care for or protect them except his aged father, whose this unexpected and heavy stroke, descending upon his already heavy weight of years, has well nigh bowed down to the grave.

Poor Charley! Little did we think on Sunday morning when we saw him, but a few moments before the sad occurrence, buoyant with life, and hope, and health, in the full enjoyment of the fond anticipations of happiness and long life, that in one short hour we should behold him clasped in the cold and icy arms of death, and the eye, so short a time before lit up by the radiance of life, dimmed and blinded in a moment by the fell destroyer; but such is life, and, however sad and afflictive the bereavement, it should but serve to remind us who remain, of the brittle tenure by which we are held amid earthly scenes, and, when the hand of the destroyer falls suddenly among us, let us take it as the warning voice of the monitor, bidding us, "Be ye also ready."

The verdict of the jury was as follows: "That the said Charles H. Anderson was this morning, about 10 o'clock, being the 21st of January, 1855, riding in a hand-car, on the Covington and Lexington railroad, and, in attempting to turn the crank by which the car is moved, the crank caught in his coat, threw him out of the car and across the track, his head striking the railing, and the car then ran over his body and head; as soon as the car passed over him he was picked up and found dead, but whether his death was caused by his being thrown out of the car, or by his being run over thereby, we do not know."

J. D. WARD, Coroner.

Our Merchants.

The merchants of Cynthiana, it has been said by some, sell goods at a higher price than those of any interior town in the State, and men doing business in other places often, while persuading purchasers, make use of arguments similar to the above, as inducements that they may dispose of their own merchandise. This is all wrong; and we can prove that it is a mistake. For instance, a gentleman from a town in Kentucky, the citizens of which often boast of their immense wealth and intelligence and vaunt their experience in trade, made a visit to Cynthiana, not long since, for the purpose of learning the prices of groceries. He accomplished his object; but, imagine his surprise, when he learned that our grocers were doing a thrifty business and selling goods at Cincinnati prices.—Again, we have purchased dry goods in Cincinnati, and elsewhere, but find, in the end, that goods can be had as cheap, if not cheaper, at home than abroad. These are facts, for the truth of which we can array a host of the yeomanry of old Harrison to prove.

No pecuniary aid has induced us to make these remarks about the trade of our town, but justice to our fellow-citizens as well as to our merchants. Business, we perceive, is opening fair for the new year.

The nett amount of gold and silver in the United States Treasury subject to draft, on the 25th December, 1854, was $24,907,083 76.

Col. Doniphan, one of the heroes of the Mexican war, was recently thrown from a stage, near Jefferson City, Missouri, and so badly injured as to render his recovery doubtful.

FIRE ENGINES.—The following extract we copy from the "Guardian of Liberty," published April 12, 1817, which answers the question we have asked many times, that is: Where the small engine was built which the boys of town have had in use so often, but which, unfortunately, was left in the river at the time of the big rise last spring, and has never been heard from since. This extract must have been taken from a Cincinnati paper:

Fire Engines.

"CINCINNATI, (O.) April 15, 1817.

"Our citizens have lately had several opportunities of witnessing experiments made with an engine constructed entirely in this place. It is considered by all who have examined it, and have seen its performances, to be inferior to none. This town has lately received one direct from Boston, which has proved itself to be a good engine, with which the one made here is considered entirely equal. Messrs. Downs & Hains, the builders, are prepared to make others at a short notice, if applied for, and from the specimen they have furnished there can be no doubt of their giving entire satisfaction to such towns as may give orders for engines. The one already constructed, he it said to our shame, is engaged for Cynthiana, Ky."

We would like to have our little engine just now for the purpose of making a donation of it to the Council of Cincinnati, that they might easier see the improvement their enterprising mechanics have made in the fire engine from the year 1817 to 1855. Cincinnati sent her first engine to Cynthiana. She is now furnishing the Western world with machines of this kind.

Louisville Correspondence of the News.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 20, 1855.

DEAR NEWS—I am happy to learn (from the Cincinnati Times) that the lovers of the dance—a portion of "the beauty and chivalry" of your young city, together with numerous invited guests from neighboring cities, towns, villages and hamlets—have recently had a good time at the West House; and that you and Mrs. M. were among them. I thank the Times correspondent for his graphic, yet, to me, rather obscure description of the beauties, amiables and notables who did, on that auspicious occasion, meet "to chase the hours with flying feet"; and would intimate that when Mr. W. gives another, it might not be amiss for him to extend, through you (for I am incog.) and invitation to the "Louisville Correspondent," who can trip through the winding ways and mysterious mazes of the boatman's dance, with all the grace and majestic strides of an elephant!

But, I must to business. There has been but little change in the business affairs of our city since my last. The river is about at a stand. The Times has not, that I have heard of, given the promised exposure of the K. N.'s, but the most intense excitement (!) prevails to see the statement.

Last Sunday night I went to the Cathedral to hear Bishop Spalding, who has been delivering a series of lectures on the Roman Catholic Church, and intend to go again on next Saturday night, and then, after I have heard him twice, I may give you the sum total of his two lectures, in about twelve lines manuscript. The Bishop is a man of age and experience, a pleasant speaker, and, withal, a good historian on Catholicism, and the persecution it has received since the English Reformation. He did not, however, in all the manifold injuries that he charged upon the Protestants, on last Sunday night, mention any of the persecutions that his church has meted out to "heretics," aforesaid. But, more anon.

There are a great number of good-looking strangers in town, and, among them, Mr. W., editor of the Chronicle, (Winchester) who is pronounced one of the beauties by the ladies.

I might tell you who'll be the next Governor of Kentucky, if I was disposed to "Gossip," but, as yours is not a political paper, I forego the pleasure. I think that he will be selected from one of the interior counties.

We now have a Minister at Spain, or will have when he gets there. Maj. Breckinridge is the man.

I understand that Mr. E. L. Tilton, the accomplished actor and manager, has leased Mozart Hall, and he informed me, the other day, that he will open a new theatre there about the middle of next month.

The Illinois Central Railroad, running from Chicago to Cairo, is now completed. It is the longest railroad in the world, and cost some $17,000,000.

A man, name unknown, was found dead near the White Mills, in Covington, Ind., Monday morning. From appearances it was generally believed that he had frozen to death during the night previous.

Business Men Attention.

We have neglected a duty which should have been attended to some months since; but, better late than never. This notice is intended for business men who may need the assistance of forwarding and commission merchants. To such we would recommend to their consideration the house of CASEY & WITHERS, of Cincinnati and Covington, whose advertisement, with references annexed, may be found in another column. These gentlemen are among the pioneer business men of the West, and of the most reliable.

The interest they have exhibited in the progress and completion of the Covington and Lexington Railroad—embracing their ALL, as it were, in an uncertain enterprise for the public benefit—leaves not a doubt on our mind that they are entitled to the forwarding and commission trade from the business men of Kentucky and the west. They have been, and, if we mistake not, are now members of the Board of Directors of our railroad, and Mr. Witherers has received the appointment of Superintendent. Being so widely known, and so closely identified with the railroad, they are better prepared and capacitated for the Forwarding and Commission business than any firm in the West. Remember that they have a house in Cincinnati and Covington, and all packages of goods and merchandise entrusted to them we warrant will be attended to with promptness and care.

The cars on the Covington and Lexington R. R. run off the track yesterday at Lexington. No one hurt.

Russian Manifesto.

The Emperor Nicholas of Russia has issued a manifesto to his people in relation to the war, from which we make the following extract: "After having proclaimed as their object the safety of the Ottoman Empire, they have waged open war against us—not in Turkey, but within the limits of our own realms, directing their blows on such points as were more or less accessible to them—in the Baltic, the White Sea, the Black Sea, in the Crimea, and even on the far-distant coasts of the Pacific Ocean. Thanks to the Most High, both in our troops and in all classes of our subjects, they everywhere met with intrepid opponents, animated by their love for us and for their country; and, to our consolation in these troublous circumstances, amid the calamities inseparable from war, we are constantly witnessing brilliant examples and proofs of this feeling, as well as of the courage that it inspires.

Such are the defeats more than once inflicted on the enemy's troops on the other side of the Caucasus, notwithstanding a great disparity of force. Such was the unequal conflict sustained with success by the defenders of the coasts of Finland, of the convent of Solovetsky, and of the fort of Petropavlovsky in Kamchatka. Such, above all, is the heroic defence of Sebastopol, signalized by so many exploits of invincible courage, and of indefatigable activity, as to be admired and done justice to by our enemies themselves.

Russians! my faithful children! you are accustomed to spare nothing when called by Providence to a great and holy work—neither your wealth, the fruit of long years of toil, nor your lives—not your own blood, nor the blood of your children. The noble ardor that has inspired you from the first hour of the war will not be extinguished, hallowed what may; and your feelings are those also of your sovereign.

Mr. H. IRELAND—If you will consent to run for Constable in District No. 1, (Cynthiana District) you will be supported by
